18th Cyprus Theatre Festival 02-23 September 2022

"YAFTALI TABUT / The labeled Coffin" by the playwright Bilgesu Erenus

By Heidi Trautmann….

The Istanbul Şehir Theatre came to Cyprus to take part in our theatre festival. We found again an excited audience and with great pleasure, I realised that there were mostly young people attending the play on 6th September at the Lefkoşa'da Sahne /Nicosia Stage.

For the first time, we have the festival in the newly founded theatre which has approximately 500 seats available, and they were all taken.

A remarkable play written by a woman – Belgesu Erenus – about the first female playwright in Turkey – Fatma Nudiye Yalçı – and played by seven women – Bensu Orhunöz, Ceren Hacımuratoğlu, Lale Kabul, Nazan Yatgın Palabıyık, Selin Türkmen, Şenay Bağ, Yeşim Mazıcıoğlu – and even the male roles were played by them.

The play is about the life of Fatma Nudiye Yalçı, born in Istanbul in 1904, the first female playwright of Turkey, socialist, activist, and a pioneer in all areas of social and political life, whose name we can come across in the footnotes of history. For her work and activities, she spent 10 years in prison. There is more information to be found about her life on the internet which shows us the hardships women standing up and were going through in the first half of last century.

The choreography and realisation of the play was very interesting; all persons were present on stage throughout the play, just retired out of light when not in the scene. It was presented as a sort of documentation. The main figure was played by several actresses, according to the passing of time, recognizable by wearing a red emblem. Changing of costumes was done on stage.

A very impressive work and it is good to be remembered of the hardships women in those days went through. It made me think of my own grandmother, born in 1892, who as a young woman started her life as a writer. Also the life story of the playwright of this play – Belgesu Erenus – is most interesting to read, she has written many books and plays and I am sure that the knowledge she has put into the play has been gained through her own experiences.

HRH Queen Elizabeth II and King Charles III

By Hughjarrs….

The story of Her Late Majesty Queen Elizabeth will be told and retold in the British media many times. Most of it will be touching and beautifully presented, some less so, but it will be done far better than your inadequate wordsmith can achieve. Instead I will reflect on the monarchy. Whilst the death of the Queen and the accession of Charles III appear as just normal ticks on the clock of British history I feel it also marks some deeper changes. It is like the passing of summer to autumn, which we are experiencing now. The plants, birds and animals sense the coming coolness and rain. Birds migrate. Seed pods swell and burst. Exhausted plants die. Somehow the landscape has changed. Maybe it is more hostile.

The British Monarchy is like the human appendix or the coccyx. It is the shrunken remnant of something that was once important.

In earlier centuries British monarchs formed and financed their armies then led them into battle. George II was the last to do this in 1743. Queens from Boudica to Catherine of Aragon were also active in warfare. Financial control of the army passed to Parliament only in 1689 with the Bill of Rights as a result the monarch lost the power to subordinate his subjects by force. HM the Queen, reflecting her personal and military impotence said: “I cannot lead you into battle”.

Also, she said: “I do not give you laws”. That is a long retreat from the divine rights of kings to create laws and rule as they wished to just acting as a rubber stamp to laws dreamt up by febrile politicians in Parliament. All that is left to the monarch is adding the Norman French words “la reyne le veult” to validate a statute. Even that is now done for her by the Clerk of the Parliaments. No refusal to a law has been given by the monarch since 1708. To refuse now would be a constitutional earthquake.

Nor, the Queen has said: do I “administer justice” which was, originally, the “king’s peace”. There is an endless list of roles to which people are appointed by the monarch but the list is dictated by the politicians. There are also reserved “prerogative powers”, existing outside any statutory authorisation, but they, too, are nearly all exercised by politicians on behalf of the monarch.

In a famous phrase, the monarch reigns but does not rule.

What then is the function of this shrivelled historical organ? Would it matter if the monarchy vanished? Most countries get by, very happily, with a non heredity head of state without many palaces and flunkies although, there is sometimes a tendency for a state figurehead to seek to attain royal status by becoming a dictator – Putin or even Trump’s failed attempt, for examples. Once, an impotent Parliament was a counterpoint to a powerful monarch. Now, Britons feel that even an impotent monarch serves to mitigate the foolishness of the over powerful Parliament and Executive. My feeling is that the monarchy in Britain is an invisible glue holding together the commonweal of the people. It works by magic but only if the monarch is a magician. Walter Bagehot had the foresight to agree with me.

Great Britain is an amalgam of 4 countries, England, Wales, Scotland and Northern Ireland. Politicians in each of those countries seek to divide their people from each other and to pull apart the union of these countries. In England, Conservatives. Labourites and Liberals all rant against the others. In Wales Plaid Cymru denounces everyone in Welsh, but few understand. In Scotland the SNP lives in a different world to the highlanders and lowlanders and in Northern Ireland the different flavours of supporters of the same God cause trouble against each other every day. Each of the four countries also has innumerable groups forming a rash on the body politic; there are many ghettoised ethnic groups, religious and atheist bodies, the pompous rich and welfare poor and so on, beyond counting.

The stresses and strains of modern society are held together by many forces including a shared language and a shared cultural history. In this our modern, constitutional monarchy somehow acts as an important elastic web or a glue, which allows all these tensions to pulse but, at the same time, pulls them back together again. The Scottish King, James VI, became James I of England so the Scottish Crown absorbed the English one. The son of the monarch becomes the Prince of Wales who later ascends the throne underlining the importance of Wales in the union. By these symbols the Crown reinforces the strength of the intra-national ties.

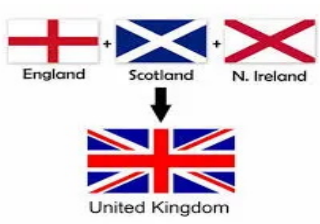

The Duke of Windsor, formerly Edward VIII, is reported to have said words to the effect that Elizabeth, his niece, was a nice but not terribly bright person which qualities, he said, well suited her as a future as queen. He was right. Her late Majesty’s personal charm and common sense combined with her unwavering commitment to upholding her declaration, that the duty of the monarch is to serve and love every one of her people, made her the magician whose personal glue bound together the fissiparous nature of Great Britain and the Commonwealth. It was a great performance and will be a very hard act to follow.

Charles III has always been, quietly, a most caring person. At Cambridge, as a contemporary of mine, he obtained a ballerina’s degree in an undemanding subject. There could not have been a better intellectual foundation. He is a man who is clever enough to know what he doesn’t know. His interests are relevant, wide-ranging and his knowledge of them substantial. He has learned from his mother’s knee, over more than half a century, the art and perils of the bearer of the Crown. His has been an unparalleled royal apprenticeship in a complex world.

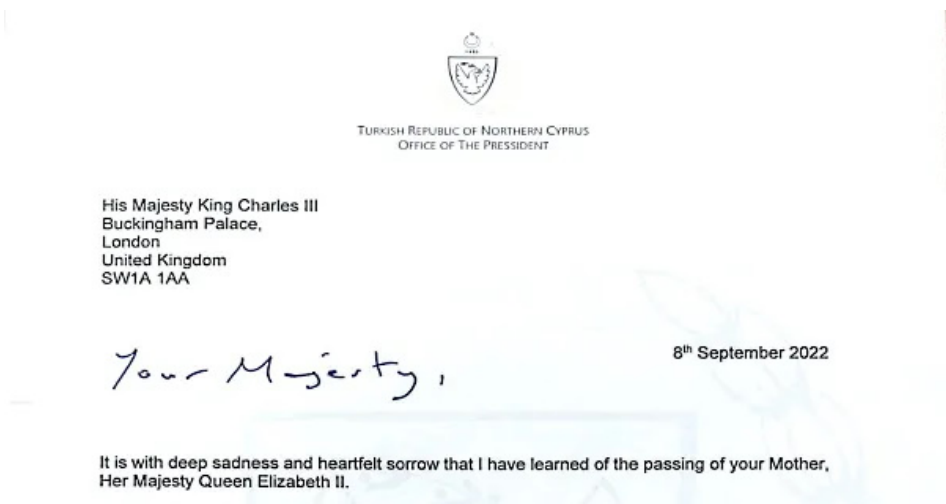

The death of Her Majesty marks the end of an era which was remarkably unremarkable. Now start a new one which is bound to be tumultuous. There is war in Europe. The world is on the cusp of global climate catastrophe and upheaval. Life is going to be harder. He who holds aloft the Royal Standard now has a more difficult job but I believe King Charles III has the magic and he has the glue.

TRNC President Tatar's letter of condolences to King Charles III

TURKISH REPUBLIC OF NORTHERN CYPRUS
OFFICE OF THE PRESSIDENT

His Majesty King Charles III
Buckingham Palace,
London
United Kingdom
SW1A 1AA

8th September 2022

Your Majesty,

It is with deep sadness and heartfelt sorrow that I have learned of the passing of your Mother, Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II.

This is a letter that was sent to King Charles III from TRNC President. Ersin TATAR:

It is with deep sadness and heartfelt sorrow that I have learned of the passing of your Mother, Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II.

"I respectfully extend to Your Majesty in your bereavement and to all members of the Royal Family our deepest sympathies and sincere condolences on behalf of the Turkish Republic of Northern Cyprus and the Turkish Cypriot People.

Having lived and studied in the UK for many years, I have special love and affection for Her Majesty. She devoted her entire life courageously to the service of the British people and to helping and supporting charities and different communities. Her reign was indeed a source of inspiration and strength, and she will always be remembered for representing the very best of the United Kingdom.

May God grant you the strength to continue the good work of Her Majesty in continuing the steadfast role in reaching global peace and stability, through cooperation and equal respect of all Peoples in our world.

Our thoughts and prayers are with Your Majesty, the Royal family and the British people at this time of mourning. May Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II rest in eternal peace and may God bless your reign.

Please accept, Your Majesty, the assurances of my highest consideration.

Ersin TATAR

President"

President Ersin Tatar congratulates new UK Prime Minister Liz Truss

"I wholeheartedly congratulate you on being appointed as the new Prime Minister of the United Kingdom. I hope that a positive contribution will be made towards fulfilling the promises in ending the isolation of the Turkish Cypriot People."

President Ersin Tatar has wholeheartedly congratulated Liz Truss on becoming the new Prime Minister of the United Kingdom and wished her success in office, whilst calling on her to take action that will "alleviate the hardships" related to trade and travel between the two countries.

The President, who sent the new Prime Minister a letter offering his congratulations on behalf of the Turkish Republic of Northern Cyprus and the Turkish Cypriot People, also states that he "looks forward to working with you in developing relations with the UK, to address issues relating to trade and travel between our two countries, and to help alleviate the hardships this is causing to the estimated 300,000 Turkish Cypriots who live in the UK and the estimated 15,000 British nationals who have made Northern Cyprus their home".

Referring to the Cyprus issue, President Tatar stated in the letter that the Turkish Cypriot Side's position is that a settlement in Cyprus must be based on the acknowledgment of the sovereign equality and equal international status of the two Sides on the island.

President Tatar expressed his hope that a contribution will be made towards fulfilling the promises in ending the isolation of the Turkish Cypriot People in the fields of trade, travel, sports, and culture.

WARNING: Striped Eel Catfish reported in Cypriot waters

Another nail in the coffin? New alien invasive fish in Cypriot waters: Striped Eel Catfish

Readers Mail….
Dr. Damla Beton….

More than 1000 alien fish species have invaded the Mediterranean via Suez Canal causing sweeping ecological changes. Among them, poisonous species like lionfish and pufferfish have received attention for hindering fishing economies, causing injury, or damaging fishing gear, while the rabbitfish and Indian goatfish have been beneficial, with new fisheries established for them.

One new species was added to the list from Cyprus: the Striped Eel Catfish (Plotosus lineatus).

Although it has been recorded in the Mediterranean since 2002 and is known to have invaded Turkish waters, its presence in Cypriot waters was confirmed only last year. A fisherman collaborating with the Cyprus Bycatch Project caught it in his nets for the first time in the Dipkarpaz region.

The Striped Eel Catfish has dangerous venom glands attached to its dorsal and pectoral fins. Stings can be very painful and can persist for a long time, possibly requiring medical treatment. Most cases of stinging have been during handling of fish by fishermen or through contact with fish stranded on the coast. We therefore advise anyone encountering the species not to touch it directly if they can avoid it, and to report all cases to the authorities.

Unfortunately, there are serious concerns that if this species becomes widespread, it will compete with native species and threaten fish stocks and biodiversity, as has been the case with other invasions.

The best preventative action against such invasions is through fisheries management. If we ensure that native fish stocks are managed at sustainable levels and provide Marine Protected Areas, native species populations can be restored. Then coastal ecosystems and fisheries may be more resilient to colonisation of these opportunistic alien invaders. Our work in this regard continues in cooperation with the Animal Husbandry and Environmental Protection Department.

In this regard, University of Kyrenia lecturer Prof. Dr. Fatih Hüseyinoğlu and Dr. Beton from the SPOT-North Cyprus Turtle Conservation Association team.

My Life in North Cyprus – Chapter 2

In Memory of Margaret Sheard RIP 1938 to 2022.

By Margaret Sheard…..
18th August 2012….

I sat in my lounge with furniture and cartons and boxes all around me and thought where on earth do I start.

So came the arduous task of unpacking. I had brought 3 rolls of carpeting on the container as I must confess I like carpet in my bedrooms, so before I could do much I had to lay carpet in the bedrooms and hallway. A lot of people thought I was mad not wishing to keep the tiled floors but in later years I have noted quite a few people have laid carpet! It was not an easy task but I got there in the end and then I could start unpacking. It was like Christmas morning opening all of the 70+ boxes. I had almost forgotten what some of my stuff looked like. This was in addition to unwrapping the furniture which had been very well packed with bubble wrap and corrugated paper.

I only had one slight bit of damage to an item of furniture and one broken mug, so that really wasn't too bad. It took about a month to clean up the floor tiles and put all of my bits and pieces where they needed to go, getting air conditioning installed and purchasing some of the items which were not included in the build, and having them fitted.

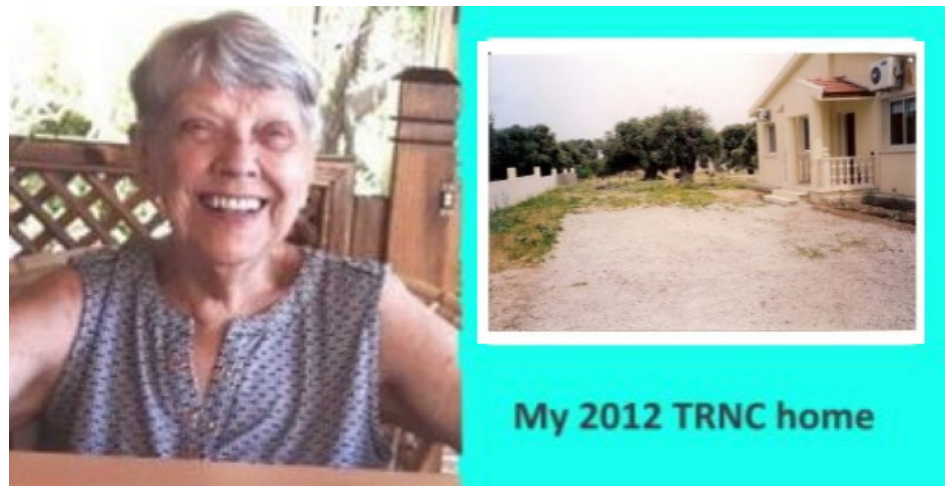

At that time I was glad I had brought most of my furniture with me as there were very few furniture shops locally and not being familiar with Lefkoşa then I would not have known where to go. I even purchased flat pack bedside cabinets, chests of drawers and a computer desk and this all came over on the container. A kind neighbour helped me to assemble all of this so everything was coming along well. Of course, nowadays there are many really good shops selling all manner of furniture but that is now, not back in 2004.

At last I was really here and when your home is around you once again it really is time to start living the new life.

There was the area of land which was to be the garden, it was a lot bigger than I had envisaged and as I didn't particularly want a garden at all (this was why I originally had decided on an apartment) I was totally phased out by this enormous expanse of ground.

On reflection I am so glad I have the garden where I can walk around and feel space. Well, here I was with this blank canvas, I had not intended to do much to it for a while, that was to be a project for the future, but as I sat outside on the terrace enjoying the sun, my mind started working overtime and I had very quickly planned one area of the garden So it began, as soon as the first area was sorted out I already had visions of the next area and so it went on, and towards the end of the year it had been paved, planted with shrubs and fruit trees, and chippings laid over a fairly large area to reduce maintenance. What a lovely experience that was and I am pleased to say that although I am not a good gardener I seemed to make the right choices with most of the plants and trees and, with the exception of one or two, they are still flourishing.

My one pride and joy is an avocado tree which I planted that year, it grew tall but year after year there was no fruit but in 2011 I had a marvellous crop of avocados, a bit small but I was able to have many delicious starters of prawn and avocado from my very own tree. I recall someone telling me that it could take 7 years before the tree would fruit and this seems to have been about right. I can take credit for the design of the garden but have to say I had a lot of help with the hard work of digging and planting and of course all of the paving was done by contractors.

So for the next few months I was enjoying the bungalow and the garden and finding my way around. Life was good.

During the year, my ex-employer asked me to go to Spain to "sort out his office". He had recently moved there and as he had always totally relied on me to see to almost all of his business and personal affairs he was at his wits end and called for help. I arranged to go there in October 2004 for 3 weeks. It was a nice change and during the time I was there I managed to get the office and procedures set up for him. I was all geared up to go to Spain and then there was a change in my life which was the best thing that could have happened to me

Two weeks before I was due to go to Spain, there was a little face at my front door and there sat a small black cat. I went towards it and it fled but only to the end of the building and it sat there peeping around the corner at me. After one or two repeats of this, I opened a tin of tuna, which was all I had that was suitable and he gobbled it up. Before very long I sat on the front steps and he was on my lap. I have no idea where this cat came from, he was a bit timid but obviously used to being handled and petted. Later on I found he had a fascination for open trucks or cars with open windows, he would be investigating in no time at all and I decided he had probably been carried to my area while investigating a parked vehicle somewhere..

I felt so sorry for whoever had lost him. Off I went to Spain thinking that would be the last I would see of my new arrival, I had asked my sister to feed him and would just wait to see what happened. I didn't expect him to still be there on my return. I emailed a couple of times and was told "yes, he is still here", but I thought oh well he will probably move on before I get back. I had a nightmare journey back from Spain and instead of arriving back at about 9 pm it was 6 am the next day when I finally got home.

What was the first thing I saw? a little black cat coming to greet me. I was over-joyed. He stayed and never ventured too far away, except initially when he was off courting (he hadn't been neutered) but this was soon remedied with a visit to the Vet. The Vet thought he was about 3 years old so I kept this in mind as he grew older.

So, my new found friend became part of my life for the next few years, I wish it could have been longer, he was so affectionate and I loved him to bits. If I was in the garden and he couldn't see me he would yowl until he knew where I was, then he would wander off quite contented. In the afternoons, when it was hot outside, we would lie together on the settee with me reading and him gently snoring in my ear, he loved to be cuddled and would sleep with his head on my shoulder. I find it difficult to describe the affection we had which seemed to be on both sides.

It was very sad that in 2009, after having my cat for 4½ years he developed a nasal tumour and there was nothing that could be done for him as an operation would have been too dangerous to carry out in such a sensitive area. A few weeks later, he was sinking fast, not able to eat or drink and sneezing blood everywhere so I had to make the decision to put him out of his misery and ask the Vet to put him to sleep. I brought him home and buried him in the garden. For the next few days my life was in turmoil and I cried incessantly, I never thought I would get over losing my cat, but they say time is a great healer and this is true but I still think of him and wish he had lived to a grand old age. I am sure people who have lost pets will be able to understand how I felt at the time.

Now I was on my own again and suddenly I felt so alone, not bored or stressed, just very lonely. In 2010 I made a trip to the UK, the first since I had moved to North Cyprus, it was a nice couple of weeks and I realised I had forgotten the greenery and some of the nice things and I started to think maybe I should go back.

Stephen Day remembers Margaret Sheard with respect and admiration

Readers mail….
From Stephen Day….

Dear Chris.

I write to offer you my most sincere condolences for your sad loss.

Margaret Sheard was not only talented and a major contributor to TRNC life, but she was also a lovely person. Her contribution to the BRS alone was living proof of that. She was also brave, especially in adversity, as you know only too well.

I also wish to express my admiration for the way you supported her in her hour of need and your unstinting efforts, throughout it all, to your joint venture with Margaret, namely this CyprusScene online newspaper.

You have my very best wishes and deepest respect. The whole expatriate community has every reason to be thankful for Margaret's life. I am sure they are.

Best wishes Chris.

Gas Tank Permits

I went into the office in Girne, which issues gas tank permits to see if they are any nearer issuing these years' permits yet. The answer was 'the Government have not given instruction on the revised dates as yet and there is nothing on the horizon from them'.

When asked if the permits would be backdated to January and would the Government issue fines for late payment, I was faced with the usual Cyprus shrug of the shoulders.

Strike Action

Strike action taken by Government employees working in various departments over the past few weeks means these offices are now operating on a skeleton staff basis. The result is extremely long queues making it impossible to get served!

For driving license renewals, they are now requesting you supply a copy of your passport to accompany your application, quite why totally eludes me.

Temporary Residence

The fee for the health insurance part of your Temporary Application has increased in price to 1000 tl per year per applicant.

The application part of the procedure is yet to be announced, but back your last pound there will be an increase.

Asa K. Jennings work led to changes in Turkey's future development

Readers mail....
By Roger L Jennings….

I have written many articles and made videos about my grandfather Asa K Jennings and his work in Turkey in 1922 when he was helping those in need. This brought him recognition and awards from both Greece and Turkey and I have published a new video that received recognition as Best Historical Film at the Cannes World Film Festival 2022.

Please do watch this video below and I have also given you a summary of the events which led to my grandfather undertaking an incredible task that led to major changes in the growth of modern-day Turkey

100 years ago the Turkish Army defeated the Greek Army. The Greek soldiers panicked and ran to Cesme to board ships.

They left about 500,000 people in Izmir (Smyrna) with no means of support. Asa K. Jennings of the YMCA formed the American Relief Committee and the flour left behind by the Greek Army was used to feed people.

The US Navy brought more flour to Izmir from Istanbul. The flour was a gift from Near East Relief, an American organization.

There was fear of disease breaking out and the Nationalist Turkish government said the people in Izmir would have to move to the interior of Turkey. Asa Jennings went to Gazi M. Kemal and requested permission to remove the people from Izmir.

The Gazi approved with conditions and Jennings took 2000 Greeks to Lesbos where he found empty ships. Greek General Frankos refused to allow those ships to be used to remove people from Izmir.

Then the Greek battleship Kilkis entered the Mitylene harbour and Greek Captain Theofanides translated messages written by Jennings that were sent to the Greek Government. In the end, Jennings had to blackmail the Greek Government with the help of Captain Cast Theofanides to get 26 ships to remove people from Izmir.

For his service to Greece, the Captain was kicked out of the Greek Navy. Jennings removed 350 000 people in 11 days and then got permission from the Gazi to go to all Turkish ports and in 10 months 1,250,000 people were removed from Turkey. Greece made Jennings the highest decorated person in Greek history. .

The Gazi was impressed by Jennings and his ability to achieve objectives. When the Greeks and Armenians left Turkey there was no one to work in the packing plants in Izmir to pack olives and other products. Jennings then set up daycare facilities so Turkish women could leave their homes to pack products.

The women were paid for their work when the men were not working. Women gained status in the family and society and the Gazi was impressed by the contribution the women were making to the Turkish economy which led to women getting the same legal rights as men. Women have become leaders in Turkey. .

Mikhail Gorbachev. A controversial political figure of his time

By Ahmet Abdulaziz….

Mikhail Gorbachev, the most controversial political leader of his time, breathed his last, on the 30th August 2022. He was 91. He was the last President of the USSR (Union of Soviet Socialist Republics). His resignation from the presidency marked the end of the economic and political system, that was enforced by Lenin and Stalin, in 1917. Born in a family of peasants, he did have a birthmark on his forehead, that perhaps, as some people believe, brought him success in life.

However, ever since Gorbachev resigned as the last president of the USSR, in the year 1991, a section of the Russian people, consider him a traitor, whereas at the same time the west considers him a leader who brought peace to the world. Thus he still remains one of the most controversial politicians of all time.

Gorbachev swiftly kept on moving ahead in the line and file of the ruling party and became the leader of the Soviet Union in 1985 at the age of 54. Over the years he had noticed that the Russian society and economy were suffering on many counts. He did have a plan in his head of reforming everything, to rebuild the Soviet Union on a stronger foundation.

Unfortunately, as he tried to put his theories into life, things did not turn out the way that he had thought. As many say that he had seriously underestimated the complexity of reforms, in then-Soviet Russia. During the reign of Brezhnev, the Soviet Union had started showing signs of weakening economy and unrest. The invasion of Afghanistan was perhaps the most unfortunate adventure that the Soviet Union had entered into. All this had burdened heavily the ailing economy.

Gorbachev had come into power, at that stage. He had thought that he would be able to end the economic and social stagnation of the USSR, to end through reforms. Through "Glasnost" and "Perestroika", he tried to introduce a policy of democratization of the country, leading to the introduction of multiple party and non-party candidates, in elections.

But the democratization led to the opening of a pandora box. Nationalism surfaced quickly, which led to ethnical unrest and related political problems. Gorbachev who had started his tenure, with a dream in his mind, soon found himself helpless to stop his country from falling apart. A few years after his becoming the president of the USSR, the country started falling into chaos.

The succeeding understanding and agreements with the west paved the way for a quick fall of the USSR. The end came on 25th December 1991, when the Soviet flag with hammer and sickle lowered for the last time over the Kremlin. It was then replaced by the Russian tricolor flag. Mikhail Gorbachev resigned from his post as the last president of the USSR, on the same day. Boris Yeltsin succeeded him as the first president of the newly established Russian state.

For the west, Gorbachev was a hero, who brought the end of communism, and brought democratization to his people. But for some, he was the person who failed to do the needful, and for the betterment of his country, and ultimately lost the whole country.

Some people believe that Gorbachev did have some good cards, but he did not play them well and lost his country as the ultimate result.

Historians are going to mention him as a leader who lost his country while trying to salvage it. That's the irony of the fate of Mikhail Gorbachev.

The Foreign Residents in the TRNC (TFR) go to Germany

Introduction by Chris Elliott…

Here in Northern Cyprus there are a number of NGOs like RBL, ATA, BRS and TFR who offer help and advice to their members as well arranging various types of social gatherings and we received news from Ralph Kratzer of TFR about their recent members' trip to Germany which we are sharing here.

"Dear members of TFR!

Our regular followers on our Facebook-group "TFR – The Foreign Residents in the TRNC" will already have seen the pictures and notes regarding our recent trip to Germany… here comes a short summary from my Facebook posts…

22nd August 2022

TFR members have arrived in Germany, tired after a 3:30 a.m. flight from Ercan to Frankfurt via Istanbul… but still in good mood… here in Steinau an der Straße after visiting the Brothers Grimm museum…

23rd August 2022

Day two for the TFR group in Germany... after a good night´s rest we learned some interesting things today… starting with the border museum in Phillipsthal (former post WW 2 border between West and East Germany which lasted until 1989) with all the cruelties and inhumanity of it, we went on to the Wartburg, one of the most important German history sites and the place where Martin Luther translated the bible into German language and laid the foundation for Protestantism until we got to the Eisenach car museum (at least the men went there, the women went shopping instead)… a very interesting day, even for me as a German…

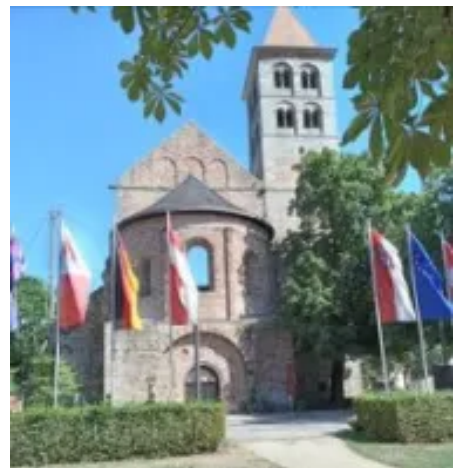

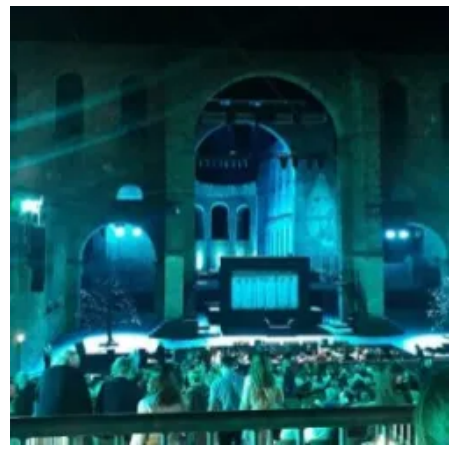

24th August 2022

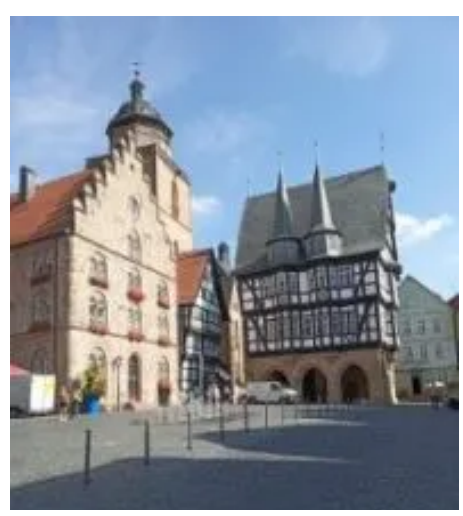

TFR Germany trip, day 3… yesterday, after our tour bus had broken down the day before and couldn´t be repaired in time, we had to re-arrange the day a bit… so, after the opportunity of shopping in the PUMA Sportswear factory outlet in Kirchheim, we all took public transportation to Bad Hersfeld, where we could walk around in the wonderful scenery… early evening we had dinner in a typical Hessian inn, the "Klosterschänke Johannesberg" with tasty food, good beer and fruit wine, which I haven´t had for a long long time… the highlight of the day certainly was the musical "GOETHE!" in the Stiftsruine (Abbey ruins) Bad Hersfeld – said to be the biggest church ruin in whole Germany… .

25th August 2022

Day 4 of the TFR Germany trip… after our regular trip bus still not could be mended we got another coach and went to the historical town of Alsfeld… got a really talented and funny tour guide… after that we went to one of the oldest "Schnaps" distilleries of Germany in Schlitz… having finished the organised tour through the facilities we were invited to the "taste room" having samples without limits… can you imagine the result? Tonight there will be an authentic Hessian folklore night in the hotel… wonder how many people will turn up?

26th August 2022

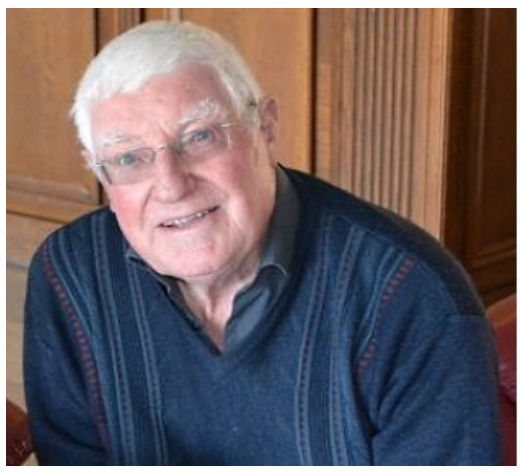

TFR trip to Germany… day 4 evening and day 5… as I posted yesterday, I was wondering how many members of our group would turn up for the Hessian folklore evening after our tasting in the "Schnaps" distillery… all of them did!… it was a nice event, both for us "Cypriots" and for the dancers who maybe plan for the future to visit us in TRNC…

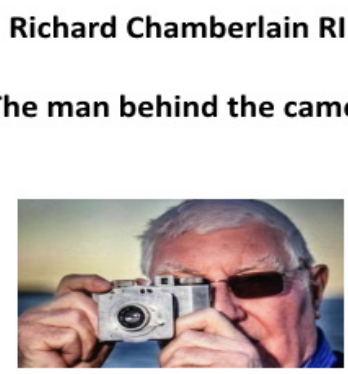

Today we headed for the airport where our paths parted… most of the group went back to Cyprus, others went to UK and Sarah and I go down to Bavaria to visit my family for the first time after 6 years… (the pictures above show the folklore dancers and us at the "Andechs Monastery Brewery" in Bavaria)

Richard Chamberlain RIP – The man behind the camera

By Chris Elliott….

I was deeply saddened this week to learn that our dear friend Richard Chamberlain had died.

Margaret Sheard and I had become friends with Richard many years ago and helped him promote his books and exhibitions and many memorable ones including his exhibition in Famagusta and in the Old Round Tower in Girne where Margaret talked to Richard whilst I recorded a video. In fact Richard was very active promoting his 1950 photographic memories and even lobbying the UK Government to recognise the TRNC with help from CyprusScene publications

Sadly over the past year or so we were loosing contact with Richard whilst Margaret was having lots of hospital treatment and were aware that Richard also was also having medical treatment so we saw less of him..

He is a great loss to the TRNC and its communities and we send our condolences to his family and remember him in many happy ways and our readers will learn more of him through this interview we made with him in February 2021.

The Man Behind the Camera…

Hello my name is Chris Elliott and I would like to welcome you to this CyprusScene review and my guest is a well-known ex-soldier, photographer and resident of Northern Cyprus, Mr. Richard Chamberlain.

Welcome Richard and it seems you are always busy either sending reviews to CyprusScene for publication or promoting your books of photography from your army days way back in the 50s.

So please tell us a little of your early days in the UK and how you came to take photos of Cyprus when you were in the army.

Richard: I first became interested in photography in about 1950, when I was 15 years old. I had a brother who was 7 years older than me and good at metal work. Amazingly, he made me a small camera out of a Colmans Mustard Tin.

It took 16mm film. He also taught me how to develop the film and put the film into a photographic enlarger. I took the camera to school and started taking photos of the boys in my class and when I got home, I developed the film and enlarged the photos and sold them to the boys for sixpence each.

Chris: Amazing, so tell us about your time in the army

Richard: I left school when I was 16 years old and went into the printing industry as a apprentice compositor. At 18 years old, my twin brother, Michael and I were told to go and join the army under the government National Service scheme, but before I joined the army, I went to the camera shop and bought a French camera called Gallus De-lux. It was £8, about 2 weeks wages in those days and I took the camera with me when I joined the army. After our initial basic training we were taught some sort of "trade". I was taught to be a wireless operator, and my brother was taught how to drive an army lorry.

Chris: Wow, so how did you start taking photos of Cyprus and what did you do with them?

Richard: Soon after that we were sent to Cyprus. We could not believe our luck. When we arrived, we thought we had arrived in Paradise. We had never been anywhere up till then.

As soon as we were allowed some time off, we went down to the local town, which was Famagusta, (now known as Varosha or Maras). I had my camera with me and I soon started taking photos of this "Paradise" we had come to. There were camels walking down the street in Famagusta, old men with donkeys loaded up with farm produce, rows of "shoe shine" boys wanting to shine our army boots before in England. So there was plenty to photograph. Everywhere I looked, I kept taking photographs.

Luckily, the army had a "darkroom" in Famagusta for us soldiers to go and develop our films and print the photographs. I spent a lot of my spare time in the dark room.

Before we went into the army, my 2 brothers used to cut each other's hair, so besides the camera, I took with me I took the hair clippers. In those days, the young men's style was to have their hair fairly long, but the army didn't like long hair so the Cypriot army barber used to cut it short. So because I would just give them a little "trim", I soon became more popular than the camp barber. I used to charge sixpence for a trim up. I soon took enough money each week, not to take my army wages. I saved them.

Unfortunately, the army Sergeant Major caught me cutting hair one day and banned me. But it wasn't long before the soldiers were asking me for just a trim again and I had to start it again.

When I came out of the army, I put my negatives and prints away in a cupboard because I didn't think there was much interest in Cyprus in the UK. Years later, my brother came across them and gave them to me. I decided to get all the negatives scanned and put on a CD. Then I decided I would put the photos together in a book.

With the help of a friend, we designed a book and put them all together, and had it printed. I sold quite a few books on Amazon.

In about 2015 I decided to move to Northern Cyprus for good. I took my CD with all the book photos on it and had it printed again in Northern Cyprus. I have sold or given away about 1,000 books.

I have presented my book to 4 North Cyprus Presidents and now I have been asked to donate my collection of photographs to an archive of Old Cyprus photos that is being set up by the Nicosia museum. I am honoured and pleased to accept.

Chris: Richard thank you, that is most fascinating, and so as we come to the end of our chat we are adding some clips of a previous video we made with you in the old Round Tower in Girne some years ago and we hope you and our viewers will enjoy your past hobby through your pictures.

Drought Ends, Its Raining Goals In Esentepe

Result: ESENTEPE KKSK 4 GIRNE HALK EVİ SK 2

By Richard Beale….

After going 7 matches without scoring a goal, it only took a minute for Esentepe to find the back of the net then the floodgates opened with a deluge of goals.

Saturday August 3: Friendly Match : Esentepe Erdal Barut Stadium.

At last a pre-season win, a deserved win, as soon as the opening goal went in, you could see the confidence surging back into the players and especially in the first half Esentepe created more goal chances than did in the entire previous 7 friendly matches.

The goal drought ended for Esentepe to be precise after only 38 seconds from the kick-off a through ball found SEMIH ARSLAN who finished cooly pass the advancing goalkeeper. For a moment it took a while to register, we were stunned Esentepe had scored a goal! 1-0

3 minutes in it was 2-0, a surging powerful run down the right by Mustafa ended in a perfect cross that was met by a superb KAAN GÖRNEÇLI İheader that gave Serhat in the GHE goal no chance. 2-0.

GHE was shocked, we were shocked Esentepe were steamrolling forward at every opportunity, backs Mustafa and Emek were getting forward, and the home team had control of the midfield with Emre full of running.

The GHE goalkeeper Serhat pulled off a string of fine saves as it could have been easily 4-1 at the break. GHE chance came in the 23rd minute when Hüseyin flicked a through ball past the advancing Esentepe goalkeeper Onur only to see the effort hit the right-hand post.

Onur in fact had a fine match, especially commanding in the air grabbing perfectly GHE crosses and corners.

HALF TIME SCORE : 2-0

GHE made a number of changes during the break and these had an immediate effect starting the half very positively. They reduced the arrears with a fine goal in the 47th minute through a close range first time volley by HÜSEYİN KÖLE. 2-1

Esentepe were still a threat now relying on breakaways, in one such raid in the 54th minute, Salih found Kaan on the right whose hard shot was deflected onto the left-hand post by the GHE goalkeeper.

Esentepe restored their two-goal advantage in the 62nd minute with a clever goal from ESER KAN. Eser provided the pass that sent Semih into the box, his shot hit the advancing goalkeeper, rebounding back too near the touchline where ESER seeing the goalkeeper stranded and the goal unguarded, sent in a low precise shot into the net. 3-1.

HALİL penalty gives Onur no chance

GHE kept pressing and was awarded with a second goal in the 70th minute when Devran upended Tahir in the box and HALİL scored from the resultant penalty. 3-2

Esentepe sealed the match with a very rare goal from midfielder TUĞRA KİLİÇ fastening onto a Mahmut pass to finish cooly.

FULL-TIME SCORE: 4-2

SUMMING UP: GHE will be Esentepe first League opponent when the season opens on September 23/24, I will snap your hand off for a similar score!

This was the tonic Esentepe needed, heads were beginning to drop, and now the monkey is off their back we can look forward to the last 2 friendly matches with some confidence, even though they are against Super League opposition.

I thought MUSTAFA SOYTÜRK was Esentepe's best player, the youngster is so strong and fast GHE had trouble in dealing with his surging runs down the right. Onur in the Esentepe goal was strong and commanding. Emre ran and ran, tackled strongly in midfield. Kaan showed some lovely touches and scored a superb goal. Tugra coming on as a 65th replacement made his presence felt. The green shoots are growing again!

ESENTEPE TEAM: Onur (gk) ; MUSTAFA , Şenol (Okan 57), Devran, Emek (Nersin 57) ; Salih (Şahın 70), Emre, Kaan (Tuğra 65) : Deniz (Eser 23), Semih, Dursun (Mahmut 45).

Class Football Tells In The End

Result: CİHANGİRGSK 3 ESENTEPE KKSK 1

By Richard Beale…

They "huffed and they puffed" eventually Super League team Cihangir managed to "blow Esentepe house down" but the visitors did not disgrace themselves.

Saturday September 10: Ali Şenkayalar Memorial Match: Cihangir Stadium.

This friendly game between the 2 sides was the annual Memorial match for Ali Şenkayalar who I believe was an ex player and held various posts with Cihangir. We were well looked after by the Şenkayalar family who presented spectators with small boxes of patisseries. Unfortunately being a memorial match no alcohol was on sale so the 25 TL Efes beer in the wonderful Cihangir Sports Club bar will have to wait for another time!

Esentepe gave this match an opportunity to look at a trial list forward from Turkey, Murat Karşıt. Murat played the first half but was given little service to impress, whether he is given another chance in Esentepe last friendly match next week is debatable.

With regular goalkeeper Onur on holiday, with no back up keeper for Esentepe, they had to arrange hastily for retired custodian Tuğrul Denkler to don his gloves again. Tuğrul didn't let them down pulling off a couple of good saves, even saving a penalty.

The weather for mid September was very warm, Esentepe in the first half frustrated Cihangir packing their midfield and defence.

The only chance created by either side was in the 30th minute when a Cihangir shot hit the outside of the Esentepe left hand post, though Tuğrul had it covered. Cihangir had plenty of possession but were wayward with their finishing and final ball.

Okan the veteran Esentepe defender was giving Emeka Uzor the giant Nigerian striker no room to settle.

Emre Mutlu was working hard in midfield putting in some hefty tackles. Kaan Görneçli at last playing in his favoured position in the middle of midfield was prompting and urging. Right back Mustafa Söyturk who throughout was very impressive was always keen to get forward, making some surging runs. I think he will be the next Esentepe player to attract Super League scouts.

HALF TIME : 0-0.

Esentepe made a couple of changes during the break, some positional, one pushing Kaan out to the right where he was often ineffective, making runs not seen by his team mates.

Esentepe were penned back relying on quick breakaways. Tuğrul and the Esentepe defence continued to fight doggedly but eventually the pressure told in the end.

Ironically it was ex Esentepe favourite TACETTİN KÖSE who opened the scoring in the 56th minute heading in a right wing cross. 1-0.

Esentepe conceded a second goal two minutes later when Tuğrul was unlucky to have been adjudged to bringing a Cihangir forward down in the box. Tuğrul bad luck continued he flung himself to his left to push aside Emeka penalty but his defence reacted slowly, EROL AKSUNLAR following up reacted the quickest to hit the rebound home. 2-0.

Esentepe who had created little up to now suddenly shocked Cihangir creating their best goal chances scoring from one of them.

69th minute Mustafa Söyturk went on another one of his surging runs spotting the run of SEMIH ARSLAN too be honest looking well offside, no whistle came and the young striker celebrating his 19th birthday went onto beat the Cihangir goalkeeper.

Two minutes later the Birthday boy was unlucky not to score again when he found himself in space, his first effort rebounded off the goalkeeper's legs, his second effort was cleared off the line.

EMEKA UZOR Cihangir tall powerful striker was now finding more room he came close on two occasions, firstly being foiled by a great last minute interception by Emek. Then hooking a low cross just wide of goal.

He was not to be denied however in the 76th minute converting a low cross which should have been cleared by the Esentepe defence.

Though they continued to battle hard, Esentepe could not put the Cihangir defence under any threat and the game that was played in good spirit finished without further incident.

FULL TIME SCORE : 3-1

ESENTEPE TEAM Tuğrul (gk) ; MUSTAFA SÖYTURK, Okan (Ege Can 67), Devran (Nersin 80), Emek (Ismet 70): Salih, Emre (Şenol 71) : Kaan (Tuğra 67) : Semih, Murat Karşıt (T) (Mahmut 46), Dursun (Eser 46).

ESENTEPE LAST FRIENDLY MATCH : Saturday September 17 : Kick off 5-00pm : Esentepe Erdal Barut Stadium .
