The weather is changing in Cyprus

By Ahmet Abdulaziz

I remember a couple of weeks ago I wrote about the weather and rain. At that time I had hoped that the rain and wind would change, and we would enter a proper summer, but alas that has not yet happened. Still the weather is unpredictable and we have not yet seen the heat of the summer and the month of June is near finishing.

The other evening we went to a small cafe, by the road, to eat Adana Kebab. As usual there were some tables and chairs outside of the cafe on the pavement, and some inside the shop. We went through a short period of discussion regarding 'where to sit'. My wife and I wanted to sit inside the cafe, as it was cold, whereas the children wanted to sit outside. The wind was quite cool to some degree, and it was cloudy

In the end we gave way to the opinion of the children. We sat in the open, but felt somewhat uneasy as the wind was quite cool. My wife went to the car to take something to cover herself, as she was feeling cold. The children however, also started feeling cold, as we placed our orders. This time they opted to move to another table, by the side of the wall of the cafe, where the thrust of the wind was less

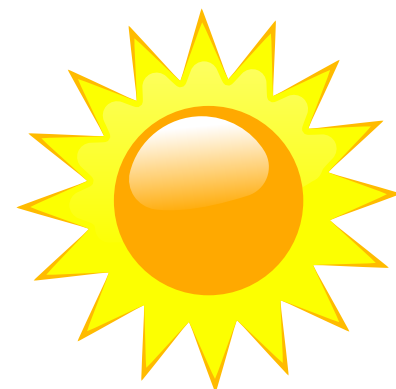

However, as the waiter was serving the meal to us, we all decided to move inside the cafe. (We were lucky as there were no other customers in the cafe, at that time). Inside it was better, as apart from other things, I was also able to watch the TV and we started eating the Kebabs.

We had not yet finished our meal, when my son started complaining that it was too hot inside. In fact it was. Perhaps also because we were eating hot kebabs, we were also willing to return back to the table outside the cafe. By that time some other customers had occupied the table where we were sitting previously.

As we managed to settle at another table on the pavement, it started raining. It was not proper rain, in fact, it was just drizzling, not sufficient enough to make us wet, but sufficient enough to make us return back inside the cafe, where other customers were trying to find a place for themselves and within a few minutes the drizzling rain stopped.

Luckily it was evening, though not totally dark. But I am sure, had it been daytime, the last scene of the episode would have been sun. Repeatedly we are watching drizzling rain with sun shining over us.

The general feeling about the weather is that most probably this year we will be having a mild summer, less hot than the previous years, but the winter will be much colder than in previous years

Let's wait and see.

Spokesperson Burcu: “UN Report is a great injustice”

Presidential Spokesperson, Barış Burcu, has described the report of United Nations Secretary-General Antonio Guterres to the members of the UN Security Council regarding the Cyprus negotiations as containing “serious injustices.”

Barış Burcu this week issued a written statement regarding the report of the UN Secretary-General Antonio Guterres delivered to members of the UN Security Council on the negotiation process in Cyprus, including the period from 12 August 2017 to 21 May 2018.

"The Secretary-General has overlooked the positive aspects of the Turkish Cypriot side and the negative approaches of the Greek Cypriot side in this process, with the intention of creating a balance between the two sides. This is a great injustice towards the Turkish Cypriot side, as was the case with the report delivered last September" Burcu said.

The Spokesperson added that although there are concrete examples of collaboration between the two sides being blocked by the obstructive stance of the Greek Cypriot side, including schemes to enable the use of mobile phones on both sides and the permanent linking of the electricity grids under the Confidence Building Measures, this has been ignored once more by the UN.

Pointing out the Secretary-General's statement in the report urging the use of natural resources for the benefit of both communities and encouraging parties not to create tension but rather to act calmly, Burcu said: "The Turkish Cypriot side has always made warnings to avoid unilateral moves on this matter, and repeatedly presented proposals to manage the natural resources in a common manner for the benefit of both communities."

He continued, "The issue of hydrocarbons, as Secretary General Guterres noted in his report, will be a federal issue if a solution is reached, and any decision regarding these resources would involve the active participation of both communities. However, a solution has not yet been reached. For this reason, it is therefore necessary that the same understanding is reflected in the approach before any solution. The Secretary-General has also already recommended in his report that the differences in this issue should be handled peacefully by the parties before the solution."

Burcu added: "Secretary General Guterres confirmed once again in his report that the framework (the "Guterres framework") that covered his views on six issues was presented to the parties in Crans-Montana on 30 June 2017, as we have repeatedly underlined."

Stating that Secretary General Guterres intends to send a senior UN official to the island in order to determine whether the conditions for a new and meaningful process have emerged, Burcu confirmed that the Turkish Cypriot side has ratified the nomination of this UN official. Burcu noted that the foreseen meetings may occur at the appropriate time in this framework.

Özersay: approach matters with fresh thinking

Deputy Prime Minister and Minister of Foreign Affairs, Kudret Özersay, and his accompanying delegation consisting of new diplomats and high level bureaucrats from the ministry carried out a study visit to the closed city of Varosha yesterday (21st June).

After visiting Varosha the delegation also visited Derinya crossing point where work to allow for the opening of the checkpoint has been ongoing.

Speaking at the visit Deputy Prime Minister and Minister of Foreign Affairs Kudret Özersay stated that the TRNC Government acts by taking into consideration the practical and economic impacts of decisions, such as the opening of crossing points, which will be particularly important for Gazimağusa and Lefke as well as for the Greek Cypriots who can take advantage of new trading opportunities.

Özersay emphasised the importance of fresh thinking, not only in relation to the opening of crossing points but also in order to solve problems that have become a part of the status quo for many years.

Özersay noted that the TRNC Government has issued a tender for the necessary work, and that the Government will continue to make every effort to facilitate the opening of the Derinya and Aplıç crossing points as soon as possible.

The UK NHS, a creaking gate? Never!

By Roy Oswick ..

After 10 wonderful years of living in the sun on the Island of Cyprus ill health finally dictated that we could no longer afford to pay for any further health treatments and we were reluctantly forced to return to the United Kingdom.

I had again been very ill and the responsibility for packing up our home, seeking accommodation in the UK and arranging for the transportation of our two rescue dogs fell entirely to my wife Gloria and she dealt with the situation brilliantly, allowing us to return to the UK and move into a rented cottage in the County of Lincolnshire, perfect for our needs, and ideally situated near to friends and family.

We had heard all of the horror stories about the NHS and the problems it had during our absence overseas and unbeknown to us at first was the fact that we would shortly see for ourselves just how difficult life had become.

Having registered with a local surgery we were at first impressed with the services provided and were beginning to believe that the horror stories we had heard were just that, Stories. However we were destined soon to face reality.

On father's day I became very ill and was taken by ambulance to the local hospital. It is only a couple of miles from our village and we were swiftly and efficiently transported by a very professional team.

On arrival at the A & E department we were gradually introduced to the real world. There were at least 5 other ambulances trying to hand over patients to the A & E staff, who could not accept patients as there were simply no beds available and incoming patients were required to lie in corridors on trolley's until a bed became available, and the one and only doctor on duty could find time to examine the patient and make some kind of diagnosis.

In my case this took about 2 and a half hours and I was informed that my condition was such that I needed to be admitted and about an hour later a bed was available and I was allocated to an observation ward.

I remained in hospital for 6 days during which I was subjected to every test possible to do with Heart, Lungs, Kidney Liver and every other vital organ as well as having 400ml of liquid drained from my lung cavity. The treatment could not be faulted and the efforts of the staff can only be admired. They were, all of them, magnificent.

Now that I am back home I have been reflecting on some of the incidents that at the time meant little, but on reflection highlight situations that were very funny. For instance.

1. The sleeping tablet

For the first 2 nights I found it impossible to sleep. Not surprising when you appreciate that the Nurses take Blood pressure, oxygen saturation levels and body temperature every 4 hours, through the day and the night, so rest is impossible.

However after 2 nights of no sleep I was exhausted and asked the Nurse for a tablet to help me sleep that night.

The answer was yes, but she had to wait for a doctor to prescribe it, and there was only one doctor on duty so I may have to wait. Given the pressure that the staff were under I accepted the decision, however the tablet never did arrive and I spent a very restless and sleepless night. I raised this with the ward doctor during his rounds the next morning and he assured me that he would make a note for the duty doctor to prescribe something for that night.

By 10 O'clock that evening nothing had been given to me and I eventually fell asleep. Through sheer tiredness I fell asleep only to be woken up by a very determined and loud voiced nurse. My first thoughts were that the hospital must be in the throes of some kind of security crisis as lights were on and the noise was considerable. I recall mumbling something like what is going on and seeing a smile of relief spread across the face of the night duty nurse who was responsible for my rude awakening.

"Ah at last you have woken up. Good, now take this"

At this point she gave me a small tablet and a sip of water. "What is this?" I asked.

"The sleeping tablet that you asked for" she said. I glanced at my watch 02.35 hrs. Now of course I am wide awake and I said.

"Just a minute are you telling me that you have woken me up at 2.30am in the morning to give me a sleeping tablet?" I asked

"Yes, because now that it has been prescribed I have to make sure that you take it, relax it will kick in after about an hour or so" Needless to say I was awake for the remainder of the night.

2. The 'You should not be here' incident

As I have said the nursing staff, in fact all staff, were magnificent during my stay, but given the pressure that they are under it is inevitable that at some time mistakes will happen.

Every time a nurse or doctor saw a patient I noticed that they were always required to confirm their name and date of birth before any treatment or medication was given. Having been in North Cyprus for so long it came as quite a shock to find that I was located in a ward with 5 other men.

Nurses are required to carry out various tasks during the night and this includes treatments, medications blood tests etc. so life is very hectic for them on the hospital wing that I was in, there were only 6 nurses to look after 8 wards of 6 patients. At night this level of staff was reduced to 4 nurses.

Patients come and go of course and the population of the wards changes frequently with some patients being discharged and others moved to other areas. This was very much the case on my ward which appeared to be for short term or in transit patients.

It so happened that on one day a space and bed became available and a new patient arrived. Later that day as the night shift of staff took over the usual round of treatments and medications began.

The nurse approached our new arrival and asked the usual name and date of birth question "Williams" said the patient

"We have to wait for the doctor to administer your treatment" said the nurse and moved on to the next bed.

Once again the name and DOB question "Williams" said the patient there was then a pregnant pause as the nurse realised that she had two continued.... The UK NHS, a creaking gate?

22nd June - 28th June 2018

patients with the same name on the ward and in adjacent beds. She quickly confirmed dates of birth and Forenames, "Peter" said the first Williams, "Robert" said the second."

Robert" said the nurse, "You should not be here, you were moved to Lincoln hospital this afternoon".

"Well" said Robert, "You can clearly see that I am very much here" with that the nurse fled with the treatment trolley and almost in tears. After a few minutes during which we could clearly hear the senior nurse relaying the problem to whoever it was that needed to know.

Take your Pick!

She then came into the ward, sat down and explained that the hospital had three male patients named Williams, two of whom were named Robert. An ambulance had been arranged to take one of the Robert Williams to Lincoln General Hospital, but somehow a mistake had occurred and the wrong person had been sent.

Staff at Lincoln had identified the mistake and the ambulance was now on the way back to take the correct Robert Williams to Lincoln Hospital.

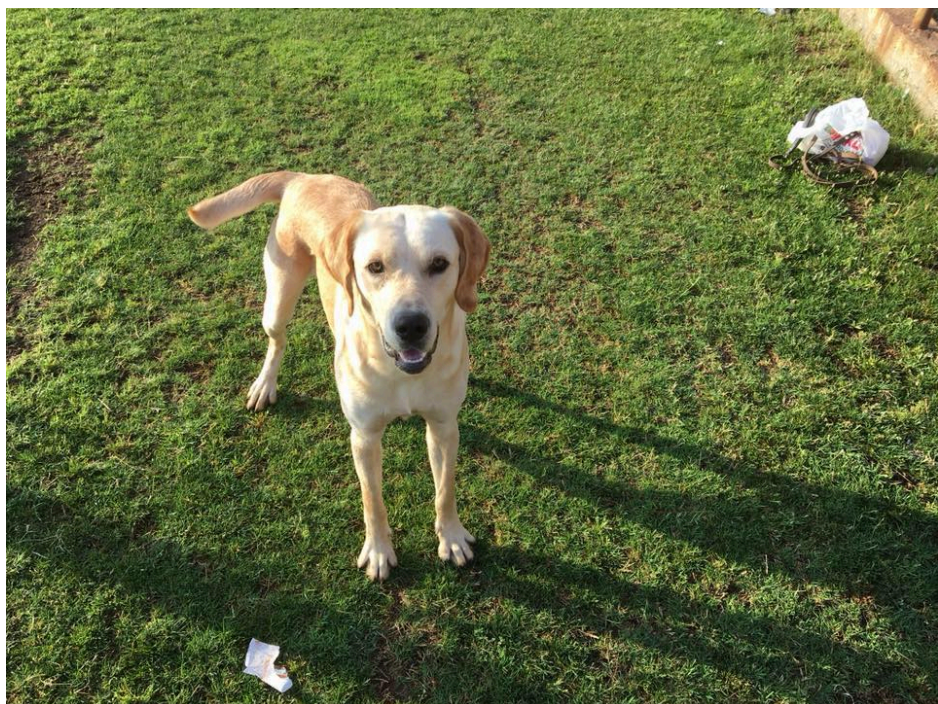

Our Robert was to get ready to move to Lincoln.

She apologised profusely but added that the transfer had to take place this evening as the proper Robert Williams was scheduled for an operation the following day. Clearly the confirmation of names and DOB had failed on this occasion.

The incident served only to emphasise the pressure that NHS Staff are under and is often referred to by staff as a creaking gate

Bouncer's Legacy : caring for street animals in Esentepe

By Chris Elliott

Richard Beale brought us the sad story of Bouncer, the dog that a number of people were caring for at the Esentepe Football Stadium but sadly he contracted Distemper and did not recover.

To read the sad story of Bouncer, as told by Richard Beale, see page 11.

It seems sadly that there are more street animals which need to be cared for than the existing NGOs can handle and in the case of the Esentepe village there is a group of people who have come together to continue their efforts to make a difference and have created a facebook page "Bouncer's Legacy" and this is the mission statement of this group.

This group has been set up in memory of a beautiful stray who unfortunately contracted distemper and didn't survive. Our aim is to inoculate all strays, neuter, spay, feed and try our utmost to find them a forever home.

We are totally dependent on help and donations.

If you feel you can also help them please go to their Facebook page and make contact.

MP Iain Duncan Smith to promote direct flights

The President of the Turkish Cypriot Chamber of Commerce (TCCC), Turgay Deniz, and Board Member Serhan Kombos expressed their support for British Conservative MP Iain Duncan Smith's initiative to promote direct flights from the UK to the TRNC.

According to a statement released by the TCCC, Deniz and Kombos, who participated in the second annual Turkish Cypriot Cultural Festival organized by the Council of the Turkish Cypriot Associations of the UK, signed the proposal for direct flights from UK to the TRNC on Sunday, 17 June 2018, at the festival.

Speaking at a press conference at the festival, TCCC President Turgay Deniz noted that the UK is one of the guarantor countries of Cyprus, and underlined that the Turkish Cypriots have consistently supported the solution and voted "Yes" for the Annan Plan in 2004.

Deniz stated that promises were given to lift the isolations imposed on the Turkish Cypriot people but the EU has not kept its promises. These pledges have not been enacted even to this day, and Turkish Cypriots remain isolated from the international community.

The economy of the Turkish

Cypriots cannot grow to its full potential because of these unjust isolations, TCCC President Turgay Deniz said. He urged for these embargoes and isolations to be lifted as soon as possible and for direct flights to the TRNC to start.

Through the Third Eye - Book Review

By Margaret Sheard

We were recently invited to a private book-signing of Through the Third Eye which was written by Turkish Cypriot Olcay Akdeniz and edited by Jenny Vardy.

It had been suggested that I might like to do a review of the book but unfortunately we were unable to attend the event due to another commitment. However, at a subsequent Rotary function, we met up with Olcay and his wife Carol and they kindly brought me a copy of the book to give me the opportunity of reading it and writing a review.

Although I do not have a lot of time to read nowadays, I have been an avid reader in the past and so I was looking forward to spending some time away from the keyboard to indulge in one of my favourite pastimes.

I have now read this excellent story, which Olcay had been prompted to write as a reminiscence and tribute to a special aunt's many wonderful stories which she told him as a child. He has apparently spent many years researching and eventually bringing the story to life. Through the Third Eye is an enchanting mixture of fact, fiction and fantasy with a bit of spirituality added for good measure. It features some historical characters, including King Philip II of France, Berengaria of Navarre, the intended Queen of Richard the Lionheart, and Salem the son of Sinbad, who eventually meet and share their hidden powers in mystical adventures. Olcay must have a terrific imagination as he has used some of the people we recognise from history blended with fictional characters which has resulted in a brilliant story.

Olcay has said that not all of the historical facts are strictly in the right order but he has used literary licence in order to enhance the story, however, it is good to read a little of the history of the places which appear in the book, including Cyprus where Berengaria and Salem also visit. The story is steeped in adventure and intrigue and is an extremely enjoyable read.

Not wanting to give too much of the story away, if you are an avid reader I am sure you will enjoy this very readable book, there are now copies available at Best Seller in Karakum priced at 70TL and when Olcay and his wife return to Cyprus, there will be a book-signing at Best Seller, Karakum on Tuesday 11th September at 1pm, so if you have already purchased the book you can take it along for Olcay to sign for you.

About the author

Olcay Akdeniz was born in Lefkosa in 1937. His father was a police officer who was posted to Guzelyurt, and the family moved back to Lefkosa when Olcay was 8 yrs old. He spent all his working life in the UK.

Olcay and his wife Carol celebrate their 60th wedding anniversary this year.

Hope 4 Pets Members' Meeting

By Margaret Sheard

Another extremely warm and humid afternoon and we were grateful for shade under the trees when we attended the Hope 4 Pets members' meeting on Saturday 16th June at the Pia Bella Hotel in Girne.

An area had been allocated for the meeting and it was beautifully set out with round tables with covered seating, and a lovely floral decoration on each table which looked very attractive.

The Hope 4 Pets stall had many items for sale and after buying some raffle tickets we settled at a table with Barbara Burton and her friend Resmi Abdurahman and also Margaretha Linden joined us, so we were a mixed cultural group and we chatted about many topics. Barbara runs a stall for Hope 4 Pets at Lemar, Catalkoy, Wednesday market, together with Karen Lain and we will be giving more information about this in a separate article.

The Pia Bella staff were very attentive ensuring we all had cold drinks to quench our thirst and they still kept smiling as they took orders and brought our drinks from the bar, which was quite a distance away.

It was nice to meet up with the people who work so hard for Hope 4 Pets – Stephanie Harrison-Croft, Emma Eminsoy and Liz Kirtley (Elizabeth Stowell) who was there on her annual visit to North Cyprus and does a lot of work on behalf of Hope 4 Pets from her home in Yorkshire in the UK. Stephanie and Emma continue the work here in North Cyprus, together with others who give their time and help on a voluntary basis.

Stephanie opened the meeting by thanking everyone for coming and giving information on what has been happening and forthcoming events to raise funds, and was also pleased to let the members know that Hope 4 Pets now has the sponsorship of Creditwest Bank. Liz also gave a short speech and following this Stephanie presented Liz and Emma with a bouquet of flowers to thank them for their hard work.

While this was happening the Pia Bella staff had been setting up the afternoon tea which was to follow the meeting and I must say they did us proud, it was a wonderful selection of sandwiches and rolls with different fillings, salad items, and a lovely selection of cakes. I would have liked to have seen more people there as catering for an unknown number is difficult and there was a lot of food left over, however this was not all wasted as most of the members took something home with them.

Tea was followed by the raffle with some nice prizes and I managed to win a bag of puppy biscuits which our dog, although not a puppy, is enjoying. Thank you to all those who donated prizes, they were very well received.

Gradually people were moving away and we stayed a little longer to chat before we too made our way home. We have been advised that the event raised 1,969TL which is a very nice amount to fund the ongoing emergency treatment and re-homing of the street animals of North Cyprus carried out by Hope 4 Pets.

We have been advised of another fund-raising event in aid of Hope 4 Pets and this is the Gasoline Blues Gig being held on Thursday 21st June at The Courtyard, Karakum starting at 7.30pm. Booking recommended by calling 0533 860 6815.

There is to be a Music and Entertainment Quiz on Thursday 5th July at The Red Ribbon (formerly Stroll Inn) Karakum. This starts at 7pm and will be 50TL entrance which includes a buffet supper. Reservations need to be made by calling Mick on 0533 877 4537. A chance to give support and raise funds for Hope 4 Pets and enjoy a nice evening's entertainment.

TFR - Midsummer Night event

The Foreign Residents in the TRNC have many social events during the year and one of their highlights is to celebrate Midsummer Night. This is how the evening was enjoyed.

By Pamela Tschersich ...

Leaving Girne at 4.30 pm yesterday afternoon (21st June) we headed West picking up TFR members en-route ready for the trip out to Akdeniz for fun, food and laughter to celebrate MIDSUMMER NIGHT the calendar's longest day.

Food and drink were enjoyed plus Horst's little extra game of guessing the number of pips in a water melon that he had religiously counted out ... Cliff Southern won the bottle of wine for being the nearest by guessing 1,350!!

As you can see from the photos members played boules and hoopla, even the horse wanted to join us as he eyed the hoops up as possible donuts!

A lovely evening in the warm Mediterranean, enjoyed by all.

KAR - speedy relocation to the UK for Efes and Curly

We noted this KAR pet travel posting on Facebook and would like to congratulate KAR on this great achievement.

KAR Pet Travel Supersonic speedy Efes ...

We were asked recently if we could send Efes to England and send Efes (and friend Curly) quickly, very quickly. There are often very good reasons why people need to move their pets quickly and it can cause us a few problems trying to accommodate the owners' wishes.

However this was not the case with Efes and Curly - their relocation went like a dream, from the very start of discussions with us start to finish to their arrival in the UK - all in exactly 2 weeks!

Luckily for the dogs their owner had pre-planned and both were ready to go in terms of meeting the requirements.

All of their vet records, serology test, completed booking forms, animal information sheets etc - everything came into the office with the dogs - so that they could be measured.

Boxes were ordered, and flight schedules were discussed - there was one slot and the owners leaped at it.

It was all systems go.

On Wednesday 13th June Curly and Efes left the TRNC. Their flights were on time and they arrived in London on the 15th June and were home with their owners later that day.

Remembering Terry Carter founder of 112/CESV at the Courtyard Karakum

By Chris Elliott...

It was a sunny day on Wednesday 20th June 2018 when many faces, old and new, arrived and gathered under umbrellas for shade on the patio of the Courtyard Inn, Karakum.

After greeting each other and reminiscing of their memories of Terry Carter and his work in founding and running the 112/CESV Volunteers they were addressed by Keith Lloyd who asked them to join him in the Courtyard Restaurant where a slide show presentation would be shown as a celebration of the life and work of Terry Carter in North Cyprus.

The slide show below was presented by Keith Lloyd and he spoke of how Terry who had a long history of first aid and emergency service work, came to Northern Cyprus at the request of Founding President, Rauf Denktaş who had seen what Terry had achieved in Turkey when he had taken his Thames Valley Rescue Medical Unit to Turkey some years before to help following a huge earthquake and then continued to return to Turkey for 9 years or more with his team to provide ongoing advice and training for so many people.

Soon after arriving in the TRNC to meet President Denktaş, Terry set to work planning and helping develop the 112 ambulance service and then formed his own 112/CESV volunteer unit working alongside the TRNC Civil Defence force.

Terry was a very popular character and tried to help as many people as he could and as Eddie Hollely the Secretary of the Bellapais Lodge said I first met Terry and his family in 2005 and we got on well and enjoyed many fund raising and other events together and then I went to a meeting where a group of expat freemasons were discussing the possibility of forming a Masonic Lodge and there was Terry who I discovered had been a mason for many years.

When I contracted bowel cancer Terry introduced me to a top surgeon here on the island and by then, as our Lodge Almoner he was able to get a grant from the Masonic Foundation to help with my treatment here and I can say his help contributed to saving my life and enable me to continue my retirement in Northern Cyprus.

The work of 112/CESV continues in the cable hands of Steve Collard who runs the unit which is now registered as a charity and is able to raise funds for the purchase of equipment that they donate to the TRNC Emergency Services as well as running their training sessions.

Steve also said they will be arranging a new training programme for the TRNC Ambulance Service soon.

Bye bye Bouncer Bye bye

By Richard Beale

Very sad to report that the Stadium Dog number 4, known as "Bouncer" (or Hakem his other name) was put to sleep on Saturday morning (16th June) after contracting Distemper.

You may remember the story of the Stadium Dog about 4-6 weeks ago as we made an appeal jointly in the CyprusScene E.newspaper and on Facebook, asking if anybody could provide a home for him. Although there was a lot of interest, sympathy and concern, we unfortunately let Bouncer down as we were unable to provide any accommodation for him.

Bouncer was a beautiful friendly Labrador puppy around 9-12 months old with a great temperament, and was dumped at the Esentepe Football Stadium around 3-4 months ago.

Bouncer was number 4 dog, the previous three dogs before him were lucky enough to find homes, Bouncer was not so lucky.

We think he used to sleep in the Referee's changing room (Referee in Turkish is Hakem) so hence his other name.

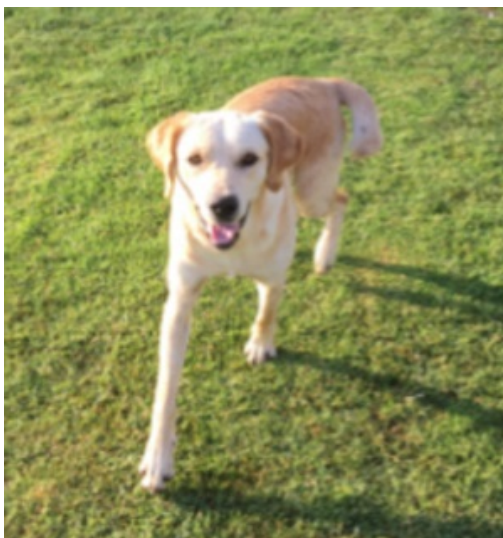

As he was always at the Stadium, people started noticing him and he was fed the odd titbits by people going to Football or by some of the Belediyesi staff, he was totally dependant on hand outs.

With the help of Rob Astley (who is doing stirring work in the area for unwanted dogs and strays) and another dog owner Karen, who walks her dogs near the Stadium, we managed to put in place a rota that ensured he was fed and watered morning, afternoon and evening.

Myself and my wife (another Karen, confusing yes) were on the early shift and every morning around 6.00-6.30 am) we walked our dogs Roxy and Paddy to the Stadium. With the sun just coming up, we either saw Bouncer on the pitch (don't think the Groundsman would have liked that) or on the mounds of soil outside the entrance.

On seeing us he would bounce over so excited to see us and our two dogs. Being older dogs our two would play with him for around 10 minutes and that was enough for them they "threw the towel in" as Bouncer had so much energy.

It was the same with Karen and her two dogs, and Rob when he arrived on his motorbike, he was so pleased to see you, yes he wanted food but he also wanted company.

Alas we were unable to find him a home but gladly continued with our rota and Bouncer was growing into a fine handsome young boy. We were even discussing that Bouncer would soon have to be "chopped", lucky for him he remained intact and hopefully he is enjoying himself in doggie heaven.

We noticed one morning last week that Bouncer was not his normal self, he was lethargic with no energy and wasn't really interested in his food, which normally was devoured in seconds, although he drank copious amounts of water. We thought maybe it was the humid and hot conditions, or maybe he had eaten some rancid meat or something.

He wasn't looking well the following morning so we decided if he wasn't any better the next day we would take him to the vets. Next morning and the following morning he wasn't around, we all went up at various times during the day to look for him and were getting increasingly worried and concerned.

Last Saturday morning we got a call from Karen to say that he was at her house but was very ill. We managed to get him to the vets, where unfortunately he was diagnosed with Distemper and the disease was too far gone for the Vet to save him.

Bouncer spent a lot of time on his own, but at least my wife Karen was with him to hold his paw, when he embarked on his final journey.

Now over a week on the wounds are still very raw, we cannot bring ourselves to even go up to the Stadium. In time of course we will, I need to, to watch the Football!

Now as I write this we are racked with guilt, would it have been such a hardship for us to provide him with some temporary foster accommodation? Should we have got him inoculated?. It's too late now - RIP Bouncer you will be missed and I am so sorry that we couldn't do more for you. Hope you find many friends in Canine Heaven.

Thanks to Sibel and all at Pet Cross for their help and compassion shown to Bouncer even though he was a street dog. Also to Rob and Karen who without them Bouncer would have had an even shorter life.

WARNING TO ALL DOG OWNERS : Bouncer died from Distemper this cruel disease has gotten a hold in Cyprus. It is an airborne disease, and KAR have advised that this can incubate for several months before symptoms may show. KAR are still in lockdown due to the disease at the Rescue Centre. The dog becomes listless, loses its appetite, and sometimes cannot keep their eyes open, is very thirsty and develops a cough. Be warned make sure your dog's vaccinations are up to date, if a dog gets Distemper then there is very little hope for them.

Yildiz Doyran : Chi - Life Energy Exhibition : ArtRooms, Girne

By Heidi Trautmann ... www.heiditrautmann.com ...

There is no better way, no better tool to explain life, to explain nature, than the arts. Art is life, is nature, all questions we have about life is explained in or by nature or by letting yourself become part of the chain, and by observing and understanding.

This is what the artist Yildiz Doyran has tried to make us understand and...she has well succeeded.

In her foreword, Oya Silbery, the director of ArtRooms, states the sad fact that we humans have created an illusion of life with the manifestation of our independence from nature, creating sterile environments instead, that turn our existence into something artificial.

Yildiz Doyran uses nature as the raw material of her art and presents the philosophical findings of her research and observance as abstract photographs, prints and etchings, space installations, acrylic paintings on canvas and paper.

Yildiz Doyran was born in 1964 in Hopa on the Black Sea Coast. She graduated from Gazi University Faculty of Education, Painting Dept. in 1968. She completed her PhD degree at Hacettepe University Faculty of Fine Arts Painting in 2002. Today she still works as Dean of Art, Design and Architecture Faculty at Düzce University

Her works give us an in-depth view of nature, of its colours in light and shade; she goes right into the core of nature, uncovering the natural rules of science and the principles of graphic design.

The exhibition was first opened on 22nd May and will run until 30th June, 2018 at the ArtRooms in The House in Girne (opposite the Colony Hotel), viewing times are according to the restaurant hours.

Sunday Lunch at Balti House, Esentepe

By Margaret Sheard ...

As we had not sampled Sunday Lunch at the new Balti House Restaurant in Esentepe (previously Fine Dining), this week we decided to take an afternoon drive and say hello to Mo Khan and enjoy a little relaxation and a meal.

Mo has made some changes to the restaurant and it looked very smart with the whole of the outside area under cover which made it very pleasant for dining at that time of day. Inside the restaurant there are some very comfortable settees where guests can also relax after they have eaten.

Although we had decided on a Sunday Lunch, I had a look at the menu and was very impressed with the range of dishes, especially a large choice of vegetarian meals.

We decided on our starters of prawn cocktail and chicken liver paté and were delighted with the presentation when they arrived. For the main course we ordered beef and roast chicken and again this was very nicely presented with 4 different vegetables, roast potatoes, mashed potato and Yorkshire pudding to accompany the meat. We were both well and truly full when we finished eating. The bill was very reasonable too, definitely good value for money.

Both Mo and his waiter, Ali, were very attentive and anxious to make sure the diners were all happy, although we didn't have a chance to say hello to Mahmood as he was busy in the kitchen!

The Balti House also has music nights with performances by popular artists and he is pleased to be able to present a Gerry Lee Lewis tribute on Tuesday 3rd July.

Mo said this will be a night not to be missed so please book direct with MO, Mahmood or the Balti House as this is sure to be a full house. 0542 889 3034.

American Indian relationship to Tuvan Turkic people of Siberia

By Ismail Veli...

Turkic's, Indians and Polynesians, what do they have in common?

I have often heard that the American Indians are somehow related to the Turkic people of Siberia, who crossed the Bering Strait in what is today Alaska and slowly spread to the whole of North and South American continent. I'm in no way qualified to say one way or another, but on attempting to research this interesting topic I was amazed at how much DNA and historical research has gone into trying to establish the facts.

The Tuvans are a Turkic speaking people that lived a nomadic way of life for centuries and specialise in cattle-herding, sheep, goats, reindeer and live in Yurts (Yurt in Turkish is often referred to homeland, Yurdum) but is an original word for home. They are immensely skillful in riding and hunting.

A leading Russian scientist in 1998 took what he believed to be a giant step in solving the old myth of the Turkic/Indian link. To be frank, the Turkic people did not exist as such thousands of years ago when the Indians moved across the Bering Straits, but a people who later called themselves Turkic did of course originate from Siberia and Central Asia. Being a nomadic people they settled in vast expanses of the Asian continent.

A leading Russian geneticist, Ilya Zakharov, deputy director of Moscow's Vavilov Institute of General Genetics, stated that a research he led in 1997 confirmed a genetic link. Though the theory has been spouted for decades it was the first conclusive evidence of the genetic link which showed a strong link among the Tuvan Turkic people of Siberia and the Indigenous people of The Americas.

In 2015 the famous Russian geneticist, Oleg Balanovsky confirmed the findings, but went one step further and claimed some links between the Australian indigenous people to those of Native Americans. Zakharov's original DNA research took samples from 430 Tuvan and compared them to 2 separate American samples of 30 and 300 respectively. The 30 samples showed an amazing 72% link while the 300 samples showed a 69% similarity. Ilyinsky took samples of 48 individuals from Brazil and many from the USA and Siberia. The results confirmed that the migration from Siberia across the Bering straits (now Russia and Alaska) took place between 20-30,000 years ago. After researching 25,000 DNA samples of 90 different ethnic groups in Russia and neighbouring countries another amazing discovery was made. This was that many indigenous people of Australia and the many parts of the Pacific had matching DNA's.

Tuvan women

If these researchers show one thing it's the amazing connection of humanity to each other. To sum it up according to the Population Reference Bureau in 2005 supported by international organisations and UN have estimated that humans evolved around 3 million years ago, in addition they estimated the world's population about 500,000 years ago to have been around 10 million. It does not take rocket science to link the world's population to each other.

Naturally the closer we get to our times the more complicated it becomes as languages, religions and ethnicity simply divided into thousands of dialects and languages a humans created words in their own environment in order to communicate with each other, hence the supposed differences in humans, which in the scheme of things are not really different but a simple issue of geographical habitation.

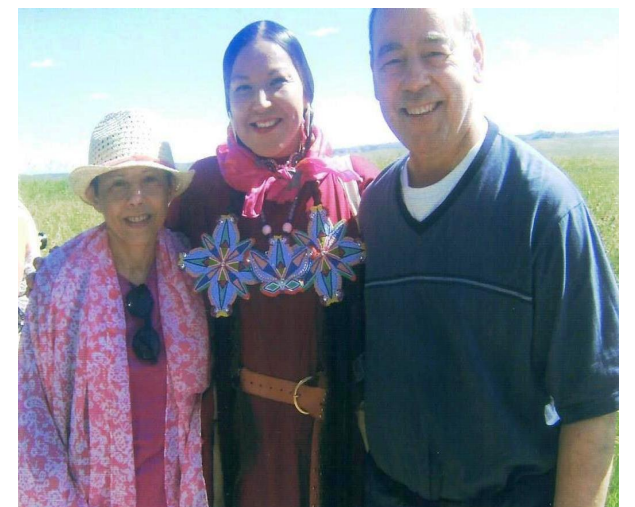

My fascination with world history and people started as a child. With the maturity of time I finally feel it's time to step up my travels in order to learn as much as possible about different parts of the world's cultural and historical richness. I just hope I live long enough to achieve my dreams.

Was George Best a Cypriot?

By Richard Beale....

One of the greatest footballers of all time could have been a “love child” of a Turkish Cypriot man and a Greek Cypriot woman.

No you could be forgiven that you thought you were reading a headline from the “SUNDAY SPORT”, but I came across this when trawling the internet. With the Local Football season now closed, I was thinking what could I write about to fill some space up on the Sports pages. Maybe there are some sporting connections between the TRNC and the UK, then I came across these headlines.

The claims came to light in December 2015, by local journalist Serhat Incirli of the KIBRIS newspaper.

He claims “according to reliable sources” that Best was the child of a Turkish Cypriot man from Lefke and a 16 year old girl from Limassol. Neither one of the young couple's family wanted a marriage, so they sent the girl to the UK, where she gave birth. The baby boy was adopted by an Irish family in 1946.

Apparently on George Best's Birth Certificate he was born on May 22nd 1946 in Belfast, his parents were listed as Richard and Annie Best. Best was registered as Ronald Samuel Best, but a further entry on the Birth Certificate showed his name changed to George Best, without any explanation.

When interviewed by the DAILY MAIL, the only surviving member of the footballer's family Norman McNary, husband of Best's sister Barbara said “ he was unaware why the name was changed, only Best's deceased parents knew the reason why“.

McNary went on to say “It's a grey area as far as we are concerned. We can only assume that it was a misprint or that a mistake had been made and later rectified. Maybe the Registrar of Births got it slightly wrong and changed it after Barbara's Dad pointed it out and said he was called George”.

The claims about Best being adopted have always been dismissed by the family.

The KIBRIS article also mentioned that Best's “alleged biological father passed away and was from a well known family in Lefke”. It also says that Best “has been to Lefke to visit him and liked to holiday in Cyprus in the 60s and 70s.

In 2001, Best was rushed to a Private Clinic while on holiday in Limassol with a stomach virus.

In 1971 in Belfast, Best scored his only International hat trick against Cyprus!

George Best was a Manchester United football legend, and won 37 caps for Northern Ireland. He was the first “celebrity” footballer and was nicknamed “El Beatle” in 1966. His extravagant and lavish lifestyle led to various problems, notably with alcohol.

Best died in 2005 at the age of 59 from multiple organ failure.

If the claims were true imagine George Best representing the TRNC or Cyprus, wow, what a thought!
